NEWS, TRUTH AND GOSSIP

By Chaunce Hayden (send gossip to: Chaunce100@aol.com)

Asshole Of The Week

Okay, this is really disturbing. Apparently, Madonna is obsessed with a Mexican artist named Frida Kahlo (1907-1954) known for her colorful self portraits (see above left). The troubled artist who was almost as famous for her facial hair as her striking art, had a very tragic life that included an abusive marriage and serious accident that left her in extreme pain the rest of her life.

Anyway, enough with the art history lesson. Madonna was so obsessed with Frida that she insisted she be allowed to portray her in the 2002 biographical movie but Salma Hayek beat her to the punch.

In fact, Madonna is so infatuated with Kahlo that she's tried to buy up all of her paintings and recently told the press, she would not be friends with anyone who didn't like her Kahlo piece titled "My Birth." Even the material girl's husband, Guy Ritchie is said to be "creeped out" by the obsession.

Now for the asshole part of the story. Madonna gets what Madonna wants. Indeed, if this self absorbed narcissist can't play her idol in a movie or buy up all of her paintings, she'll do the next best thing... turn her own daughter into the fury faced artist. (See photo above on right) Yikes!

For some bizarre reason, Lourdes Maria Ciccone Leon, the 12-year-old daughter of Madonna and fitness trainer turned actor, Carlos Leon has been intentionally made to look like Kahlo, mustache and unibrow included. It's hard to believe that a mother would do that to her own birth child. We're not talking about Mommy Dearest's token Malawian baby folks. Wolfgirl Lourdes' is the real deal!

But I guess it could have been worse. Lucky for Lourdes her mother wasn't infatuated with Van Gough or the poor kid might be one ear short. (Madonna cancels Chirstmas. See page 90)

Stink, Stank, Stunk

It appears Tara Reid's guest starring apparence on "Scrubs" was her last. According to the show's creator Bill Lawrence, Reid was his least favorite guest star... "not because she wasn't a nice person." but because she allegedly stank of booze and smokes.

Slap Happy!

Tattooed nut job Dennis Rodman is being accused of slapping a former Hard Rock Hotel employee on the ass back in March 2006, but Rodman's manager tells TMZ.com that Dennis "just wants everyone to have a good time."

By Dan Lorenzo

You know how any sane person would cringe when red neck dudes who drive trucks say things like, "We should just go into (insert Arab country) and take all their oil"? In the future I'll probably cringe a bit less when I hear them. A Saudi woman is going to jail. Her crime? She was gang raped. In the backwards ass minds of Saudi law, a woman who has been raped brings great shame to her family and deserves to be punished.

After 9/11 many people tried to imagine a cause in which they would willingly blow themselves up. Are these people that different from us? Sadly, in many cases the answer is yes. You hope that the higher percentage of people there have similar hearts and minds, that they would want peace and have a semblance of justice. The Bush administration has been way too friendly with the animals that run Saudi Arabia. Of course you and I make them rich by buying their gas. What a mess.

I'm really hoping that this whole Saudi imprisonment of the rape victim is a farce. I know the news media is predominantly sensationalism and half truths designed to grab ratings. Maybe the whole story is bogus. I usually get a good laugh while watching newscasters with nice plastic surgery reading from teleprompters.

Speaking of laughing, my wife came home cracking up the other day. She said she had just heard a Manowar song that had lyrics that were something along the lines of, "If you don't like metal, you are no friend of mine". Yikes.

While most of you were watching the Dolphins and Steelers not score a point Monday night, I was watching the Knicks beat the Jazz. What's wrong with me?

I told you about this a few months ago when the book "Ruthless" by Jerry Heller first came out, but if you want a great gift for a musician, this is the book. Even if, for some wacky reason, you didn't love NWA, "Ruthless" is a fascinating read. At the time, NWA's lyrics were extremely controversial. There was no chance of radio airplay. Heller had to conceive non-traditional ideas to get the band's name out

Jackie Martling

More popular than ever!

Interview and photos by Chaunce Hayden

Jackie "The Joke Man" Martling, is well known for his contribution in creating radio history as the head writer of the Howard Stern Show. For 15 years Martling sat along side Howard Stern and provided the radio icon with thousands of brilliant comebacks, jokes and on air laughter. Although the relationship came to an abrupt end in 2001, Martling was hardly forgotten as one of the show's biggest stars.

When Martling left The Stern Show over a salary disagreement it was like the Beatles breaking up. Loyal fans were shocked and angered by Martling's departure. However, Martling's chair on The Howard Stern Show was quickly filled by troubled former MAD-TV cast member Artie Lange.

Meanwhile, Martling never looked back. The 59-year-old long Island native spent his new freedom pursuing his other interests, including acting, music, and stand-up comedy. He also continues to expand his very successful line of electronic joke products that he has co-created with Excalibur Electronics of Miami, Florida.

Last year Howard Stern announced that Martling would be returning to radio by joining the Howard 100/101 Sirius Radio channels. The popular show called "Jackie's Joke Hunt" has brought back fond memories to longtime fans, and has once again sparked great interest in Jackie. Indeed "The Joke Man" is more popular than ever!

The show, co-hosted by fellow Friar Ian Karr, continues to air, live, every Tuesday at 7pm on Sirius Howard 101, with re-airings scheduled for Thursday mornings at 12am and Saturday afternoons at 2pm.

I recently had the opportunity to chat with Jackie Martling about why he departed the Howard Stern Show, what brought him back, and how he really feels about his replacement Artie Lange.

Chaunce Hayden: How does it feel to be back on the radio?

Jackie Martling: I'm really enjoying it. It's what I always wanted to do. It's just me and my co-host Ian Karr doing an hour a week of telling dirty jokes and talking calls from people. I'm playing stump the listeners. The listeners are trying to stump me. I'm telling stories. I'm playing my music. It's whatever I want to do for an hour and the feedback has been incredible.

For two decades you were the head-writer for Howard Stern. Now you're the host of your own show. Is that hard to get used to?

The entire time I was on Howard's show I never had any desire to be the lead guy. I really didn't. I never thought in terms of, "Boy, I wonder what that would be like." I know it sounds silly, but I'm just a stand-up comedian. I enjoy doing my jokes, but all those years on Howard I never saw myself as a radio guy. But after being away from it for a while, I started telling some jokes on one of the shows on Sirius, and I found I really enjoyed farting around on the microphone. I wasn't like, "Hey, let me leave the Stern Show and maybe one day I'll get my own radio show." It was the furthest thing from my imagination. Now here we are doing our 55th show.

Have you ever told the same joke twice during all those shows?

I've repeated a joke here and there. But for the most part, I'm firing away for an hour a week. I'm telling jokes from all walks of my life. Anything that I've ever heard or that I can remember. Even if I hear a joke while I'm in a bar with some friends, I'll just write it down. It doesn't matter how stupid, old or crazy it is. It all makes it on the show.

If you believe the internet message boards, long time Howard Stern fans are thrilled to hear your voice again. It must make you feel good to know they haven't forgotten you.

I get so many nice e-mails. It means a lot to me.

I don't think anyone ever thought you would be back under the Howard Stern umbrella after you walked away from the show several years ago. How did it happen?

Everybody thought there was a lot of animosity between Howard and I. But there never was. There really wasn't. I quit the show, got separated from my wife Nancy, stopped drinking, and moved to the beach. I just took it easy for a while. Then one night I was at the Laugh Factory and everybody wanted me to go up and tell a few jokes. So I said, "What the fuck." I went up and told about 10 jokes and every one of them went out of the park. All the people were so nice and warm to me. Then, someone came up to me and said, "Listen, I have this show on Sirius radio at noon every day. I'd love for you to stop by." He just said all these nice things. So I went over to Sirius long before Howard was there and did this show called, "Phil's Other Show." People would call in and request comedians instead of songs. I started to come on a lot and take calls from the listeners. People loved it. In fact, the people at Sirius were actually talking to me about hosting, "Raw Dog." We almost had a deal, but at the last minute they said, "Listen, the deal is off. We have a chance to get Howard Stern here." I thought they were just blowing me off.

I thought the last thing in the world that would ever happen would be Howard going to satellite radio. I really didn't think he would do it.

So what do you think convinced Howard to do it, besides the obvious financial incentives?

Howard had a falling out with Clear Channel. This is my opinion. All of a sudden Sirius realized Howard's trouble with Clear Channel and that there was no way Clear Channel was going to hire him. Plus, Clear Channel and XM were connected, so Sirius made a grandstand play for Howard. And they got him!

What was your first reaction?

It made me feel good, because I realized the people at Sirius weren't just blowing me off. We really had a deal going.

So how did you end up working for Howard again?

One day I was at Sirius after a "Phil's Other Show" appearance and I saw [Howard Stern producer] Gary Dell'Abate in the hallway. He said, (in Dell'Abate's voice) "Hey, wanna see da new stoodio?" So I saw it and met Howard's programmer Tim Sabien. Tim asked why I didn't have my own show on Sirius and I told him that nobody ever asked me. So we had lunch and eventually I had dinner with Howard. We just tossed some ideas around and the next thing I know I'm on Sirius doing "Jackie's Joke Hunt" one hour a week. I didn't go searching for it. But I wasn't running away from it either. I still have some ideas for my show that we haven't done yet. But I've learned not to tell everybody my ideas before I do them.

You said you had dinner with Howard Stern. Can you tell me what the two of you discussed, and if it was awkward?

We laughed the entire time. It was great. It was very nice and very warm. I'm sure he fucked with me on the air about what an asshole I was and how I spit all over him. But the truth is we sat down for a long time and laughed. We really put our hearts on the table. It was very nice.

Do you think Howard listens to your show?

I don't know. Robin [Quivers] said she listens to it and that she likes it. But I don't know who's actually listening. Howard might be listening to every show or he might not have heard one word. I have no idea. I just figure I wouldn't be on there if he didn't like it, or at least the people who have to like it didn't like it.

Sirius has had its troubles lately. The stock is struggling and the company is desperately trying to merge with XM radio. From your perspective, is satellite radio a good idea?

I enjoy radio either way. I go on terrestrial radio all the time and I love not being able to be dirty and play inside the lines. That's really fun. But just letting go is really fun, too. They're just two different things. I mean, what do you like better, the summer or the winter? I enjoy both immensely. I know that sounds lame, but it's the truth. It's like either hanging around with your friends or sitting around the dinner table with your family. They're both great.

How important is it that Sirius merge with XM?

I know nothing about it. I'm serious! I know nothing about the business end of it at all. I wish I did. Although, I'm hoping there will be a merger and that they'll be 7 million more listeners available. But I have no idea what's going on.

Is cursing on the air funnier then having to come up with clean words for dirty jokes?

Something is funny or it's not funny. It really doesn't matter either way. Every single joke depends on the sensitivities of each person listening. What's funny to one person is not funny to another person. You can't be general.

Do you listen to Sirius yourself?

I have the service but I never listen to it. I don't even have it in my car.

So you don't listen to the Howard Stern Show?

I'm sure Artie [Lange] has his hands full. But he's a young guy with a lot of money. If he weren't out there f–king, spending his money and getting drunk I would think there's something wrong with him.

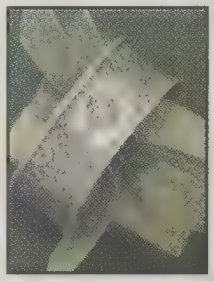
THE PAJAMA GAME

Are you chic when you sleep? It's the final frontier of fashionability, and the one that eludes so many of us. (Even me...occasionally.) Well, whether you enjoy sleeping in matched separates, or you like to lounge around in cute, colorful PJs, or are perhaps just looking for an unusual holiday gift, I have the perfect website for you: PajamaGram.com. Not only does this site have present options for everyone on your list from your father to your toddler niece, but there is a range of styles to choose from, including cozy flannel two-piece sets, sexy velour gowns, and cute camisoles with shorts. They also sell accessories like slippers, robes, candles, and even chocolate...whatever it takes to get you into your comfort zone, I guess. I know the latter certainly works for me. Plus, all their gifts come adorably packaged: Their women's styles arrive in a lavender organza hatbox (like the one being cradled by the model wearing the penguin pajamas), which also contains a "Do Not Disturb" sign and a lavender sachet. Too cute! And speaking of cute, I love those penguin PJs, which are available for $49.95. Looking for a style with a holiday theme? How about the Reindeer Games selection, which features a long sleeve green t-shirt and bottoms decorated with snowflakes and deer, for $54.95. If you're looking for a style that is sexy and comfortable, the satin leopard set featured ($59.95), meets your needs. Pajamas are a fun gift, and one that everyone except the hardcore nudist will enjoy on frosty winter nights.

GO UNDERGROUND FOR GREAT GIFTS

Some people enjoy shopping in stores, while others have switched to the Internet find the perfect holiday stash. But what if you could combine the best of both worlds: Shop in a no-hassle environment with great stuff you can see and touch? Welcome to Underground NYC, a cool new retail environment in Manhattan that gives a home to over 75 vendors, including many up and coming designers, and now, Bluefly.com! Located in midtown at 1031 Avenue of the Americas (at 39th street), this 10,000 square foot space carries everything from wallets to jewelry to clothing to home accessories. And with the addition of Bluefly, a variety of discounted designer goods will be available for clever holiday shoppers. If you're looking for unique and often handmade gifts or everyone on your list, head over to Underground NYC, now open Tuesdays through Sundays, from 11:00am to 7:00pm.

ORGANIC GEMS



Gorgeous jewelry abounds around the holidays, but quite frequently we see the same styles over and over again. Instead of letting your significant other get swept away by a Zales commercial, turn him on to a really unique website, www.sundancejewelry.com. Talented artists from all over the country contribute to their collection, which is simple, organic, and striking. Some styles I love include the Chao Praya bracelet, a solid silver cuff for $270. And many of their necklaces are really affordable, like this Pearl Among Garnets strand, for $98. And I love this little ring, inspired by patterns found in nature. The Backyard Blueberry sing sells for $90. Head over to the website to see all their designs, and I guarantee you will find something that inspires you to send a hint to your sweetie.

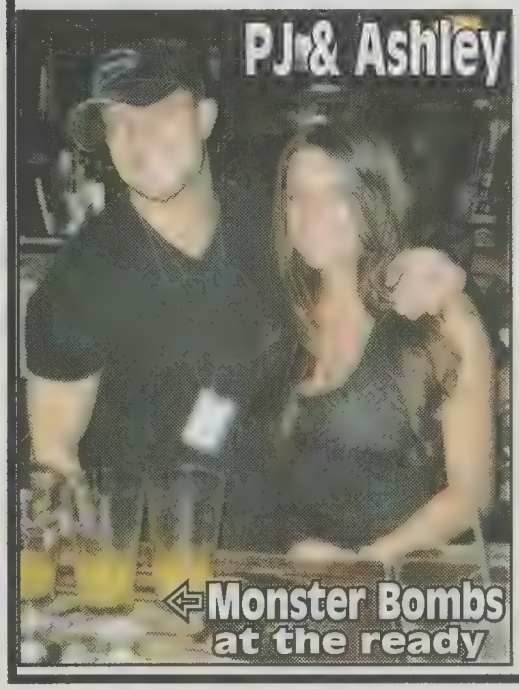
Hopefully everyone survived Thanksgiving Eve and had a great "not-too-hung-over" Thanksgiving. Now that we've passed this annual party milestone it's time to prime for New Year's Eve! Enjoy building up your resistance for the big year's end gala. It will soon be time to change the calendars and turn over whatever new leaves we plan to resolve for 2008.

Speaking of change, I dropped by Hoboken's Whiskey Bar recently to check out their newest addition of The Benjamins who play there every Thursday night. Continuing the tradition of vertical Thursdays that this band once owned at the now defunct Park City Bar in East Rutherford, NJ, these guys are still kicking out the jams in a big way. In a day and age when not all bands are enjoying the massive success they did only about five or more years ago, The Benjamins can still pull the people in. While it doesn't suck that patrons can enjoy $2 Bud Light drafts till 11pm, $3 Bud Light bottles all night and $5 martini specials for the ladies, it's clearly the band that is the ultimate draw here. Here are a couple shots from the night... Also pictured is Whiskey manager PJ with bartender Ashley who was good enough to turn me on to a new drink. It's called The Monster Bomb and I found it to be a very nice change to the industry original: The Jager Bomb. This bad boy is made by dropping a shot glass of Stoli O into a pint glass of Orange Monster Energy Juice Khaos. Although the Monster version is orange colored, it contains apple, orange, pear, peach, tangerine, pineapple, and white grape juices and is in fact 70% juice. This fact really adds to the taste and I can honestly say it is my favorite energy bomb cocktail to date.



Switching gears to beer mode, I had a chance to sample Anheuser-Busch's Winter's Bourbon Cask Ale last week. First introduced in 2005, this brew is available seasonally from November through January. Being an ale/wood and barrel aged beer it definitely is a breed apart from even the most unique craft brews out there. It's smooth, robust and has hints of vanilla and tasty hops. Winter's Bourbon Cask Ale is brewed with dark roasted carapils, caramel and two-row barley malts and imported Hallertau and Alsace hops. It is then aged on bourbon oak cask staves and whole Madagascar vanilla beans. I am told that this ale is best when accompanied by full-flavored foods like clam or corn chowder, soft cheeses like triple-cream brie or camembert, pork roast with applesauce or toffee pudding. However, I enjoyed it by itself and it was complex in taste but very satisfying. Look for it when you are out and give it a try for yourself. You can learn more at www.anheuser-busch.com.

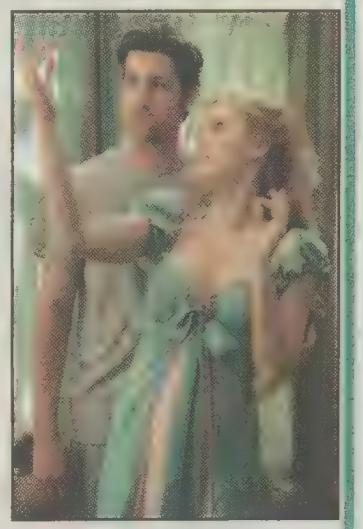
"ENCHANTED"

Beautiful princess Giselle (Amy Adams) is banished by an evil queen (Susan Sarandon) from her magical, musical, animated land and finds herself in the gritty reality of the streets of modern day Manhattan. Shocked by this strange new environment that doesn't operate on a "happily ever after" basis, Giselle is now adrift in a chaotic world badly in need of enchantment. But when Giselle begins to fall in love with a charmingly flawed divorce lawyer (Patrick Dempsey) who has come to her aid—even though she is already promised to a perfect fairy tale prince (James Marsden) back home—she has to wonder: can a storybook view of romance survive in the real world? Cast: Julie Andrews, Amy Adams, Patrick Dempsey, James Marsden, Idina Menzel, Susan Sarandon, Timothy Spall. 1 hour, 47 minutes. PG. ★★★



"THE MIST"

Following a violent thunderstorm, artist David Drayton (Thomas Jane) and a small town community come under vicious attack from creatures prowling in a thick and unnatural mist. Local rumors point to an experiment called the "The Arrowhead Project" conducted at a nearby top-secret military base, but questions as to the origins of the deadly vapor are secondary to the group's overall chances for survival. Retreating to a local supermarket, Drayton and the survivors must face-off against each other before taking a united stand against an enemy they cannot even see. Cast: Thomas Jane, Marcia Gay Harden, Laurie Holden, Andre Braugher, Toby Jones, William Sadler, Jeffrey De Munn, Frances Sternhagen. 2 hours, 7 minutes. R. ★★

MORSELS

By Mike Morse

I stagger from the living room to the kitchen. Head pounding, I survey the carnage through heavy eyes, not quite believing what I see. Dishes, pots, pans, all variety of silverware, every possible kind of dinnerware, piled high on every available flat surface. I try to find a place to lean and steady my shaky body, but there isn't an inch of space that hasn't been caked with dried gravy, sticky cheese sauce, or gooey pumpkin pie remnants. What happened? Had there been a terrorist attack on my humble home? No, it was just Thanksgiving evening, and this mess was all that remained of the day that I've come to call "Assault of The In-Laws." A mere 11 hours before, my dirty, disordered kitchen was a sparkling clean beacon of hospitality. Then, The Wife began preparing for our annual Thanksgiving feast. Our quiet house quickly took on the terrifying intensity of the beaches of Normandy on D-Day. "Yams! Where are the yams?!!" she yelled as the din of clanking pots cut through the morning silence. "Sugar!!! I need sugar!!! And get me some heavy cream!!! NOW!!!!!" Soon, The Kids and I were running frantically around the house, tossing ingredients into the kitchen like some weird Three Stooges movie. As condiments flew through the air, I quietly slipped into the living room to get some peace and quiet. My brief calm was shattered by even more noise. The In-Laws had stormed in like a herd of hungry buffalo, chowing down on appetizers and attempting to engage me in awkward small talk. Luckily, The Father-In-Law enjoys drinking scotch, so I began mixing some drinks for him and I. Luckily, after a few festive holiday cocktails, the tension I had felt all day began to melt away. In fact, the more scotch I drank, the more melting took place and, before long, the whole dinner melted into a blurry orgy of delicious carbohydrates that I greedily shoved into my mouth. The next thing I know, The In-Laws are gone, and I'm woozily standing in my war-torn kitchen. Then come the words I had dreaded hearing from The Wife: "I cooked the dinner," she yells from the living room. "You do the dishes!"

Hey guys, get those Write-Your-Own-Morsels submissions in now! The deadline is coming up soon, so don't delay!

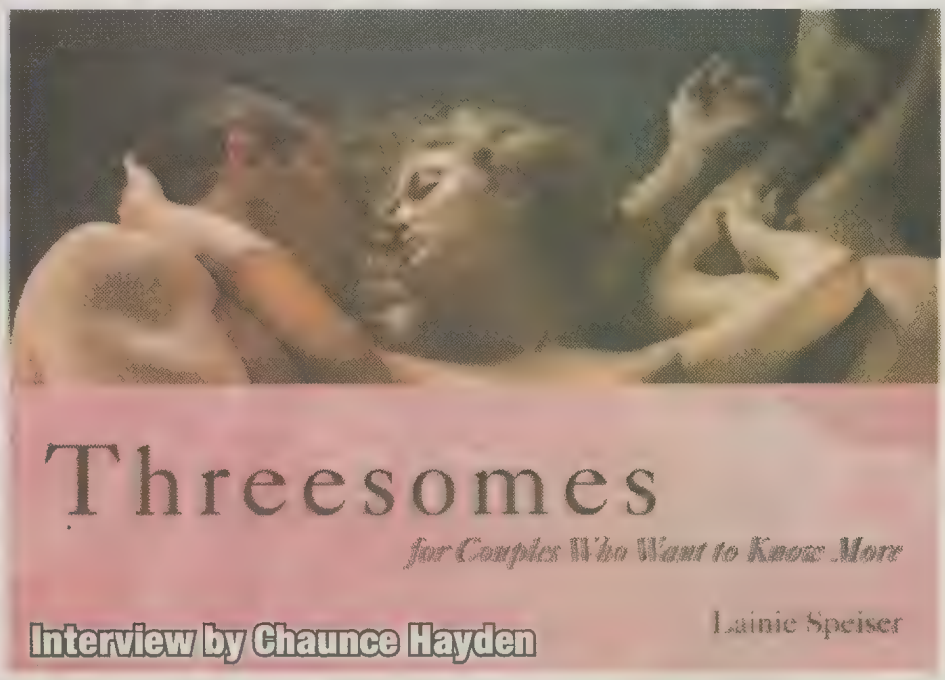
EVERYTHING YOU NEED TO KNOW ABOUT THREESOMES



Interview by Chaunce Hayden

Chaunce Hayden: What inspired you to write a book about threesomes?

Lainie Speiser: Ha, I wasn't so much inspired as I was requested to write about this subject. An editor from Quiver Publishing read a chapter I wrote in an anthology called "Naked Ambition," which was various stories from women who work behind the scenes in adult entertainment. They loved what I wrote and how open and forthcoming I was about my life, and I guess they thought, "Who better to write an erotic how to book on this subject?"

Of course the first thing people want to know is.. What makes you an expert on threesomes?

First and foremost I think working in adult entertainment since I left school would do it! I've worked for the very soft and the very hard, and then I hit the big-time when I got a job at Penthouse Magazine four years ago. I mean, I think Penthouse made the Threeway an artform, don't you? Also, I did very lengthy interviews with literally dozens of men and women on the subject. Everyone was surprisingly candid and very emotional on the topic. Everyone wants to tell their story and give their advice. I learned more from that than anything.

Have you ever had a threesome yourself?

I actually have, but chose not to write about it because I didn't want to incriminate anyone at the time I was writing it, and I didn't want to upset a certain person who was in my life at the time. But basically, to make a long story short, yes, once a lover of mine brought his roommate over to my apartment. His roommate was also a guy. It was a birthday gift actually, I always thought his roommate was hot and well, I got him and then some! It was really great and very empowering and fun to be the center of attention. But it was the only one I ever had, and it was harmless and easy because neither man was my boyfriend, but both were friends of mine and friends with each other ... though I have always wondered how they discussed it afterwards. I never had one after that and the first chapter in my book is about all the other threeways I could have had but either elected not to have or just screwed up myself with my own stupidity. They are humorous Woody Allen-like screwups, actually.

It's been said, "Be careful what you wish for." Is that often the case with threesomes?

Yes, it definitely is. You never know how you're going to react to it until you do it. People who are usually uptight can get really wild and daring, and then people who are usually very liberal will suddenly get very upset when they see their lover enjoying sex with another person. We can all talk the talk, but we all can't walk the walk. Also a lot of men confessed to me that it's not as easy as you might think, satisfying two women. It's a big job, bigger than you may think. But I tackle that issue in the book too, you can certainly work your way around it.

As a guy, I can tell you that we all fantasize about getting into a girl, girl, guy situation. But what about women? How do they feel about a third joining in?

A lot more women then you think are Bicurious and have had fantasies of being with a woman but won't admit it out loud. A threesome is a more comfortable way to experiment without having to do it on your own. Almost all of the women I interviewed wanted to be with the woman as much as the man did, and they really enjoyed the experience because of that. I actually don't recommend a woman do this unless she is Bicurious and wants to see what it's like to fool around with the same sex. Otherwise yes, jealousy and insecurity will definitely rear its head. For the most part in my book I discovered the man really had to keep up with the two women in the three way.

How difficult is it to make it happen?

It's really not that difficult. The hardest part is the initial ice breaking, getting the guts and nerve to let your desires known. That's when you're at your most vulnerable, that's when you're putting yourself on the line. And you'll find out if its doable or not right away. So, really, it never hurts to ask, but just make sure to ask in the most polite and flattering of ways. I'd say it's much more difficult to make two guys agree to have a three way with a girl, men are more hung up than women and are immediately worried about "crossing swords," so to speak. But then I have some stories in the book about men who wanted this woman so much they were willing to risk their own masculinity to get to her. One man in my book would never have met his wife if it wasn't for a threesome with his college buddy. So again, it's all about being daring and putting yourself out there. If you're not willing to take that big risk it will never happen.

The photos in your book are very hot. Tell me about these lucky people.

Thank you! I owe that all to Rosalind Wanke, Quiver's excellent photo editor. She let me bring most of the models into my book. My lifelong ambition was to write and publish a book, and then the irony is this finally happens and the photos are just as important as my words. So I brought in most of the models who I knew personally. The women are Penthouse Pets Melissa Jacobs, Charlie Laine and this year's Pet of the Year Runner Up Krista Ayne. They all looked spectacular and really made this the beautiful coffee table read it is.

I hear that Penthouse Pet Justine Joli was supposed to be one of the participants in the book, but had a falling out with her boyfriend, who also appears in the book. So she got replaced. Sounds like a lot of drama.

Yes! I wanted to hire Justine Joli to do the photos showing the positions of two men with one woman. The end result is Krista Ayne with her boyfriend Zeem and a mutual friend, and colleague of ours was supposed to pose for these photos with Justine and another male model. They were definitely seeing each other at the time ... and then they were not. I was disappointed about Justine not being in the book because that one was shot in New York. Half of it was shot in the gentlemen's club Headquarters in New York City and the other half was at The Rivington Hotel. Krista Ayne and Zeem had just shot a Kama Sutra book for Quiver and I wasn't sure they'd want to use them so soon again, but they did and it worked out for the best in the end. But yes, it was a little annoying there for a bit. I was getting the run-around he said/she said thing. But hopefully Justine will be in my next book...with a man she likes a whole lot more than that one! As it was that poor guy had to deal with Krista and I breaking out in giggles every five minutes because we never saw him naked before. You wouldn't know that from looking at those photos, would you?

What advice would you give to those reading this who hope and pray for that lucky day?

I would say to be both freewheeling and cautious, you can actually be both of these things at once. Obviously be safe, but after that I'd say, if you're going to do it, do it right. Really get into it and let go. Go wild and do all those things you've seen in porn movies. It's all good, as long as all three parties want to do it equally. And most of all, be sensitive and polite to the other people. I cannot stress the important of good manners enough. I swear in this case having good manners will result in mind blowing orgasms because, like everything in life, you really only get what you give.

VIDEO GAME REVIEWS

The hottest new games in town!

'SOCOM: U.S. Navy Seals Tactical Strike' allows for great strategy

Game: "SOCOM: U.S. Navy Seals Tactical Strike"
Publisher: Sony
System: Sony
Cost: $40
Rating: Teen
Review Rating: ☆☆☆

Gamers expecting "SOCOM: U.S. Navy Seals Tactical Strike" to be just like its predecessor will be very surprised to find that it has actually been transformed from a third-person shooter into a strategy game similar to THQ's "Full Spectrum Warrior."

Instead of actually controlling a Navy SEAL, budding commanders must direct the movements and actions of an entire four-man squad. This means that the player controls where they go and who they shoot, but he or she doesn't actually aim or fire weapons. Nevertheless, this unusual style of game play does allow for great strategy.

Several additional special forces units are available for missions that range from the United Kingdom's Special Air Service to Germany's Kommander Spezialkrafte. In addition to customizing their weapon loadouts, the player can upgrade each soldier's combat stats at the end of each mission. Additional weapons can be unlocked by completing secondary and bonus objectives.

Taking SOCOM online lets players expand their experience by challenging other special forces units to battle it out in several different mission types. It's just too bad that the A.I. is just as dumb in multiplayer as it is in single player. Don't be surprised to see your soldiers randomly rise from behind cover just to stand in the line of fire or even unload an entire clip into a wall. I guess the military is letting anyone in nowadays.

Despite the frustrating camera control and spotty A.I., "SOCOM: U.S. Navy Seals Tactical Strike" still manages to provide enjoyable, portable warfare.

By Alan Tecotzky

Well, here we are at long last-at the end of my Ride Stuff writing for the 2006/2007 season. Though I'll miss writing about bikes for the next thirteen weeks, I am sure that time will as usual, fly by and it will be March again before you know it. Until then, you of course have the 27th Annual Cycle World International Motorcycle Show to take in. This year's event will again be held at the Javits Center in Manhattan and it runs from December 28-30. The show is always a great way to check out the new technologies and bikes that will be available in the coming season. It also offers you a wide array of ways to blow your Christmas gift money! Surf to www.motorcycleshows.com to learn more.

The KTM RC8

One bike that I would like to throw a leg over is the brand new 1190 RC8 that KTM has developed. Unlike their well known offroad machines, this one takes dead aim at the superbike market. It's a 1,148cc liquid-cooled v-twin that produces 155 horsepower at 10,000 rpm and has some very sharp looks. Features include a powder-coated chromium-molybdenum trellis frame, WP suspension components (inverted 43mm front shocks and a rear monoshock,) Brembo monobloc brakes and it weighs in at 440 lbs, wet. There is no pricing available as yet but the moto should be in shops by March of next year.

Holy Moto Mayhem Batman!

Another new bike that you unfortunately cannot buy is the new Bat Bike or as they are calling it, The BatPod which will appear in the next installment of the Christian Bale-era Batman franchise; The Dark Knight. This moto features armor, weapons, grappling hooks, cannons and machine guns. Man, could I use some of that stuff on my daily commute! lol The tires are reported to be 508 millimeters, and the engines are in the hubs of each wheel! Steering is done with your shoulders and there are shields that fit each arm like sleeves which have the ability to rotate around the bike's frame. SICK!

The BatPod

Looking back on this season's columns I am reminded of the many cool things that transpired. (Okay hitting a cone on Route 80 at full speed was not cool, but being lucky enough to live through it was!) The numerous fun moto events I attended, winning best old Japanese bike at Rutt's Hut with my DT250 and my ride to West Virginia with my buddies to cruise the awesome roads down there all rocked. To me, these are the things that make riding and life in general so wonderful; the memories they create. The great thing is next year will hopefully hold a load more of the same. With a baby boy arriving in January–2008 will be a challenging one for my wife and I but I still hope to cover some miles in between diaper changes!

So if you ride all winter long, beware of wet leaves, ice, cold roads and their lackluster traction and cagers who do not expect to see you out there in it. Until then, have a nice Winter and I'll check you all out the first week of March when this column resumes for yet another run.

the wayward wino

By Sonya Hay

Wine Miscellany...

It's back! It's the time of year when everyone and their grandma is out shopping for the holidays. I cannot help but notice the mountains of newly stocked items that will be sorely picked over by December 15th. Of course, since my career is in the wine industry, many of my peers are also fellow winos. I often search for the hot new wine accessory, but chances are they already know about it, have it, or will end up re-gifting it to me! So that leaves my novice wine lover friends to buy for. My usual gift is a decorative bag with a bottle of wine, a book and a candle. I call it simply 'The Winos Survival Kit.' But, this year, there have been new slew of funky wine doodads on the market that are perfect for those friends who are still 'winos in training'. First, there's the Automatic Wine Twirler.

The first thing you do with a glass of wine is swirling it to release the aromas of the wine. This unique glass is set on a rotating stem, and buttons on the base allow you to swirl your wine appropriately with but a touch, all while making a soothing noise, right before swigging down! The most high-tech gadget I have read about so far is the Tooth-Mounted Flavor Sensor. The most amazing about wine is that as soon as you taste it, you're supposed to identify flavors of fruits, spices, coffees, botanicals and so on. This to me is the most difficult part of wine tasting – describing! Sometimes, it's best to not analyze and just drink the damn stuff. But for those who want to learn, there's this new clever little thing that can be installed in a molar. Once there, the tooth-mounted flavor sensor quickly breaks down and analyzes even the smallest drop of wine for aldehydes, esters and tannins, relaying the information to a discreet speaker in your ear! Yet to try this one out, but you better believe I will soon be able to beam up some new wine lingo in a flash! If these are too pompous for your or your wino friends, there's always the new Brass Knuckle Corkscrew. This thingamajig packs a punch and is almost certain to be a big 'hit' as a gift or at your next party. Cheers!

Native Hunt Maintains Focus on Professionalism, Customer Satisfaction

(Syndicated News) "There are two sides to every story." An old adage that has proven itself true time and time again in nearly every area of life. In the case of guided hunting services, nothing could be closer to the truth -- a fact that Native Hunt (http://nativehunt.com) owner T. Michael Riddle knows well.

"Hunting in general is a controversial sport," says Riddle. "Some people despise it while other people couldn't live without it. At Native Hunt, we understand both opinions. We never try to push our viewpoints on anybody; we simply offer our services and let people decide for themselves."

Native Hunt is a licensed, state-bonded hunting service with ranches located in Monterey and Fresno counties in California. In business since 1990, Native Hunt employs both game management professionals and trained hunting guides -- a combination that has led to a 100 percent success rate for their clients.

"Our professionals understand that not everybody agrees with what they do," says Riddle. "At the same time, however, they have high expectations to live up to from our clients; and at a 100 percent success rate, it's hard to argue with their professionalism."

Native Hunt offers a wide variety of guided hunting ventures including one- and two-day hunts for wild boar, bear, turkey, deer, and a number of assorted game birds. According to Riddle, Native Hunt's ranches offer more than just a haven for hunting enthusiasts. With tree-covered hills, lush valleys and numerous ponds, the company's property is the perfect place for individuals who enjoy the outdoors.

"At the basis of hunting is a love for the outdoors," says Riddle. "We embrace the outdoors and we believe in sharing our beautiful settings with everybody -- both hunters and non-hunters alike."

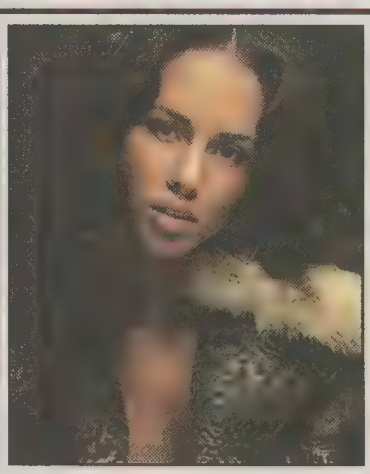
ALICIA KEYS
"As I Am"

SONY BMG MUSIC ENTERTAINMENT



By now established as a major and talented force in the mainstream music world, Alicia Keys has earned the right to explore a little, to venture into new genres while still keeping a foot firmly planted in the R&B/neo-soul she grew out of. On her third full-length, As I Am, Keys takes a step closer toward the soul revival with full-band arrangements and bright horn hooks, only occasionally falling back into the piano/melisma combination that drove the singles off her first two albums.

THE GOOD: Hip-hop rhythms, scratchy LP samples, bright Southern soul horns and slices of funk factor into "No One." "Go Ahead" - A kiss-off set to squelchy Stevie Wonder funk, doubles as commentary on the Bush years: "What have you given me, but lies lies?" "Wreckless Love" - A paean to the impetuousness of youth, boast heavy hip-hop beats but is slick and radio-friendly. Blues maestro John Mayer complements Keys neatly on the wry, piano-heavy "Lesson Learned." "The Thing About Love" - Begins as a melancholy R&B lament and rolls into pure pop-rock uplift, with Keys belting, "It's time for me to shine." "Tell You Something (Nana's Reprise)" - With verve over a crisp tempo, Keys vows to share the sentiments we too often keep to ourselves until it's too late.

THE AVERAGE: "Teenage Love Affair" - Evokes vintage Motown like the Jackson 5 and the Supremes. "Where Do We Go From Here," built on an obscure Memphis-soul sample, turns into a vintage cry from the heart. "I Need You" - Deftly balances urgent D.C. go-go funk with supple, catchy guitar. "Like You'll Never See Me Again" - A ballad that evokes Prince noodling on a toy piano.

THE BAD: Nothing.

FRANKLY: As I Am radiates not just confidence but also experience. On the whole, this is Alicia Keys' strongest effort yet.

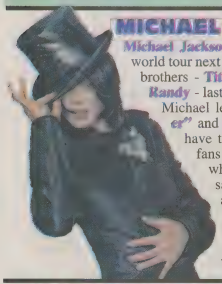
MADONNA CANCELS CHRISTMAS

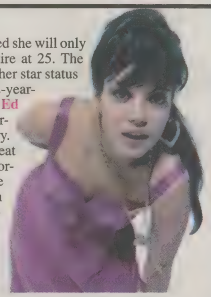
Madonna has "cancelled Christmas" and refuses to give her children any presents. The star's husband Guy Ritchie says Madonna - who is a devout follower of Kabbalah, a mystical off-shoot of Judaism - will not allow their 7-year-old son Rocco, 2-year-old adopted son David, and the singer's 11-year-old daughter Lourdes to celebrate the Christian holiday. Speaking at the London premiere of new Christmas movie "Fred Claus" Guy said, "We cancelled Christmas two years ago in our household. Once we cancelled it, we stopped all the presents, and once we stopped all the presents, we started enjoying ourselves more."

MICHAEL JACKSON TO TOUR NEXT YEAR?



Michael Jackson is set to rejoin The Jackson Five for a world tour next year, according to his brother Jermaine. The brothers - Tito, Jermaine, Michael, Jackie, Marlon and Randy - last toured together as a six-piece in 1984 before Michael left, in between his massive-selling "Thriller" and "Bad" albums. Jermaine said: "We feel we have to do it one more time. We owe that to the fans (um.. what fans?) and to the public." Asked whether Michael would be involved, Jermaine said: "He has to be, he is a Jackson. He was at the meetings. Michael will be involved." The reunion had been delayed by Michael's infamous 2005 court case, but the brothers are currently recording some new material as well as finalizing details for their tour.

LILY TO RETIRE AT 25?



Pop singer Lily Allen has reportedly revealed she will only make one more album so that she can retire at 25. The "Smile" star has apparently had enough of her star status and constant appearance in papers. The 22-year-old, who is dating Chemical Brothers, Ed Simons, is hoping to swap her busy, glamorous lifestyle for a quiet one in the country. According to reports Lily said: "It's a great job but it doesn't leave time for what's important - like having a family." But it looks like the pop pixie won't be disappearing from the limelight any time soon, as she has recently signed up to host her own TV show. "Lily Allen And Friends" will launch next spring and is expected to feature a mix of chat and music.

MARILYN MANSON WANTS TO BEAT A RECORD

Marilyn Manson would like to beat the record for taking a bath with snakes. The singer would like to beat Jackie Bibby, also called Texas Snakeman, who holds the world record for taking a bath with 87 rattle snakes for 45 minutes. A source close to the singer revealed, "Marilyn is desperate to get into the famous book, and wants to do it for something people will associate him with." Bibby has two children, and holds four world records, including holding 8 rattle snakes by the tail, in his mouth.

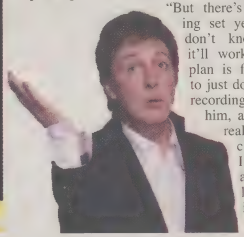
SPICE GIRLS DENY CANCELLING ARGENTINE CONCERT

The Spice Girls have dismissed reports they've cancelled their only concert date in South America - blaming the misinformation on a "fake" e-mail. An e-mail sent to fans claimed the girl group had called off their upcoming gig in Buenos Aires, Argentina, because they were letting concerts in the U.K. and the U.S. take priority. But the Spice Girls insist the e-mail is a forgery and that they're planning to schedule the Buenos Aires show for February. A spokesman says, "A story has appeared on several websites that includes a fake e-mail and competition from the girls. The fake e-mail claims that due to the demand so far in the U.K. and the U.S. this show is going to be cancelled. The e-mail goes on to say that they will be running some competitions for their South American fans to travel to the U.K. to watch a show. This is not the case and this e-mail is 100 percent unofficial and has nothing to do with the Spice Girls." The band kick off their world tour in Vancouver, Canada, Dec. 2.

WHO DOES KYLIE LOVE?

Hands up anyone who'd go out with Kylie Minogue? That's what we thought. But unfortunately, her heart still belongs to somebody else. Her French ex, Olivier Martinez, Kylie said her feelings for Olly will "always be there," despite the pair splitting this year. But it doesn't mean she's going trotting back to him. The pop diva just wants to be alone right now. So if reports about their four-year coupledom is down the drain. She recently stated: "We have a mutual respect for each other and a love that will always be there. Getting back is not even something I've thought about. We had a lovely time, though. I don't want to think about finding someone else."

PAUL McCARTNEY TO RECORD WITH HIS SON



Paul McCartney is to record with his son, James, on his debut album. The drummer and guitarist, the son of McCartney and his first wife Linda, has appeared on a handful of his father's albums, but has not struck out on a solo career until now. The former Beatle said: "I'm actually doing some recording with my son. We're just looking at the idea of him making an album. He's doing it all. He's writing it all, laying it all. It's sensational." Speaking to Billboard, McCartney added: "But there's nothing set yet. We don't know if it'll work. The plan is for me to just do some recording with him, and it's really exciting. I'm really loving it."

I've never heard the Stern show. Ever. Not once have I ever listened to the Howard Stern Show. People give me a hard time about that. Either they think I'm lying or they think I'm angry. But it has nothing to do with any of that. I just don't get up that early and I'm not a guy who listens to the radio.

Don't you know you that the benefit of Sirius is that you can listen to Howard 24 hours a day?

That would be great if I had a Sirius radio. I don't even know any of the new characters on the show.

Let's talk about the guy who replaced you, Artie Lange. Artie has stated he plans on leaving the show in the near future on several occasions. If Artie decides to leave the show, what are the chances of you sitting back in your old chair and taking over where you left off?

I wouldn't want it. Not a chance. I don't want to work that hard anymore. It's nothing against the show. It's nothing against Howard or Artie. I had the greatest time in the world for the 15 years I was there. But Chaunce, I'm a whore. I keep saying, "No, no, no." But if Howard says, "Jackie, I'll give you 20 dollars to come back," I'll say, "Okay!" I'm like a woman. I reserve the right to change my mind. Plus, it's like saying you'll go on a date with someone before they even ask you out. But is my master plan to get on Sirius and slowly work my way back on the Howard Stern Show? Absolutely not! I still get the idiot listeners emailing me saying, "Oh, you'll crawl back to Howard if Artie leaves!"

Artie seems to be having a very hard time dealing with the daily grind of the show. He's admitted to being a heroin addict, alcoholic, and has become grossly overweight during the years that he's replaced you. Is being on the show so stressful that it makes you self-destruct?

To be honest, I never had any problem. When I wanted to stop drinking, I just stopped. I didn't have to go through anything. I just stopped one day.

Were you an alcoholic?

I drank a lot. But all the time I was drinking I did 5 CD's, two videos, I was head writer of the Howard Stern Show, I did my website, and all my stand up gigs. People said I was a functional alcoholic. Yeah, and I was functioning pretty fucking well!

What's your take on what's happening to Artie?

I'm sure Artie has his hands full. But he's a young guy with a lot of money. If he weren't out there fucking, spending his money, and getting drunk, I would think there's something wrong with him. I think it's just good headlines. I hope that Artie isn't in as much trouble as everyone seems to think he is. Everybody thinks it's really strange that Artie and Jackie had problems being on the show. However, it's not Artie and Jackie. It's anybody! It's unnatural to get up at that hour every morning. You did it yourself. You know how fucking hard it is.

Is that why you left the show?

Listen, if they had given me the money I asked for I probably would have stayed. We're all whores and we all have a price. But just for the record. I didn't mind being the guy behind the scenes who was giving the jokes to Howard. I didn't want more credit. I didn't give a fuck about that. The whole thing was the hours. I was a multi-millionaire who was cranky all day. In the 70s I didn't have a fucking penny and I was walking around giggling. When you're really, really tired, nothing helps.

It's ironic that your marriage to Nancy ended after you left the show. Do you suspect that had something to do with the failure of your marriage?

Actually, Nancy and I were done a couple years before I left the show. But I was so busy on the show and working weekends, the last thing I was going to do was go look for a bachelor apartment on the days I had off. People always say to me, "Oh, you left the show and Nancy left you." But that's not true. In fact, Nancy and I are best friends. We live next door to each other. People have no idea of my personal life.

Did it bother you that Nancy went on the Howard Stern Show to find a date?

It was my idea! People always say to me, "How can you handle some of the things Howard says about you?" Half the things Howard says about me I write! Nancy was complaining to me that she couldn't find a date so I told her she should do "Dial-A-Date." It's been a long time since they did that kind of thing. I told her they would love it. So she called up and they loved it. I heard she did great!

Are you ever going to get married again?

I don't know. I date a lot of different women. I'm really enjoying myself right now. I'm single, I'm sober, and I'm rich. I'm also smart and a lot of fun. Do you know how valuable I am as a single man? I'm also fat and old. Listen, today, if you're straight and single, you're a prize. You can be fat, broke, and stupid, and in New York City you're at a premium! People can't believe I'm single.

Are there Jackie groupies?

No. No groupies. A groupie is someone who will throw down no questions asked. For me it's work. But it's work I really enjoy.

Does your website Jokeland.com still get the same number of hits it got during the glory years on the Howard Stern Show?

My website isn't as popular now because I'm not saying it every day on the Stern Show like I was back in those days. But I recently redid it and it's really a hoot. It's got me walking around and talking. Jokeland.com has really come into it's own. But from 2001 to 2005 I wasn't really doing too much with it. I was just kind of farting around.

I see you're still putting out comedy gadgets such as "Jackie's Joke Machine." How lucrative is it?

I'm not making a fortune. It's fun mailbox money. I do it just for fun and for the kids. They're really silly and the only thing those things are supposed to do is make you laugh. Just like my radio show. You're not supposed to listen to it and know what to think about President Bush.

How is your acting career going?

I'm also fiddling around in the movie business. I'm slowly finding my way in. I co-produced and have a role in "The Failure," a comedy written and directed by Tom Ellis, a very talented friend of mine who's destined for greatness in film. It's a movie about a guy who writes and directs plays, and the film is the tale of a week in his life leading up to and including the opening of his play, "The Dish Ran Away With The Spoon," and the immediate aftermath. I play The Failure's successful actor friend Marty, who plays a piece of crap Congressman in the play-within-the-film. It's great, I'm really proud of it, and we have a great shot at getting into The 2008 Sundance Film Festival. I'm also in an independent film coming out soon called, "Captain Tattoo."

What else do you have going on? What are you passionate about?

I'm on the advisory board of the Marijuana Policy Project. I really care about getting pot legalized.

So even though you're sober you still smoke pot?

I still smoke pot. I've become friends with Willie Nelson and I hosted his show for the Marijuana Policy Project down in Austin, Texas.

You know, I tried pot twice and each time all it did was give me a panic attack.

Chaunce, air gives you a panic attack. You need to go smoke a joint with me. After my photo shoot you and I are going to get nice and stoned in a park somewhere. You'll see how great it is.

Finally, any regrets?

Just one. I wish I had kids. If I could go back in time I would have three annoying teenagers that made me sorry I was alive.

HOT WAX

By Jamye Waxman

Making porn is challenging, as if that comes as any surprise since the whole genre itself is constantly being challenged, It's not just for how the outside world might view you, in fact, that's something I've stopped caring about in order to make my own movies. It's more about the people you have to deal with in the industry and then of course the product you put out. I never thought about what it meant to have my name attached to a DVD with naked people and sex until it was actually attached (as in Krazy-glued on, and not Elmer's) and then, and only then, no matter what I did I realized that I would always be a part of porn, and it would, in turn, always be a part of me.

Personal Touch

The first time I worked on a porn set I was a quick name in the credits. I wasn't the fluffer, the truth is that role doesn't exist, and if it ever did it was long before the advent of Viagra. I was a script supervisor, making sure all the dialogue – yes, the film had dialogue – and scenes were being shot so that we could actually have our movie. The second time I was a writer and producer, and even an actress (no actual sex on camera, sorry) again both with and for the "totally great for couples to watch together" Candida Royalle, a woman I had not only grown to admire, but a friend I still absolutely adore. Both films were shot in New York, away from the glare of LA, and away from the sex scene that swarms with both serious actors and serious addicts. Shooting in New York we opted for serious actors, or at least serious enough, even if one of our stars had recently had too much botox to be all that expressive, and we didn't have to get involved, at all, with the debauchery that yes, happens in LA. That made attaching my name to her products easy. Not only were we far away from the west coast, but she was also a trusted brand. I on the other hand had, and have, to build a brand, to make my way, to figure out what I represent. I want women who would never watch adult content to look at my movies, and think, if this is porn, I can watch it. And I want men who like porn to look at my movies and appreciate the art of what it is I want to do. And of course I want to be me, and show the world who I really am. It's never as easy as it sounds.

Last February when I actually flew to LA to work with my producer Jim, whom I had only met once before, I was nervous but also out-of-my-head excited. I was making MY OWN movies!!! How cool is that? And it wasn't that I didn't like, or want, to work with Jim. He was a seasoned pro, a vet in the biz, top of the line and working in erotic films for almost as long as I've been alive. It was more that I was in LA, on unfamiliar ground, actually living, breathing and working in the land of Porn Valley. The schedule was grueling. I arrived on a Tuesday. Prepped through Friday and shot Saturday, Sunday and Monday. The following week I prepped some more, and that weekend we shot Saturday and Sunday, and then we were finished. No room in the budget for overtime, no room for mistakes. And we had to make three movies in five days.

And I did more than survive. Not without some bruises, some scars and some really big mistakes. Yet I finished three products, all educational and all filled with lots of adult sex. I had to deal with a few actors who were dealing with some other "problems," some who didn't listen to direction or instruction (like when I said, "Don't wear anything with a name brand" and he shows up with a pair of jeans that have the name brand written down the leg) and still another who never showed up at all. She said she was in a car accident. Her scene partner and friend said it was more likely a marijuana-induced haze. At times I wanted to cry, but most times I wanted to laugh. Here I was doing what I always wanted to do, making educational videos for Adam and Eve pictures. And that meant I was, and am, living out my American dream.

The films are coming out to better reviews than I ever expected for my first time out of the box. The series, called Personal Touch - because we all need touch in our lives, and because I'm adding my own Personal Touch to the genre - is three videos strong, with, fingers crossed, more on the way. The first two have already hit the streets. I made these videos for couples who don't necessarily ever watch porn, and couples that might never have wanted to. They're a great introduction into erotic films, just like Candida's movies are, and they're silly and campy and (most of the time) really hot. Number one is called "Toying with Pleasure," and if you've ever wanted a lesson on sex toys, this is your 101. The second video is "Seeking Monogamy without Monotony" and it's full of basic things you can do to spice up your partnered sex life. And the third video, which comes out in February, is called "Uncovering the O" – in this case the O is for female orgasm (you must check out the squirting scene and the first scene is also totally endearing). Each video has at least one real couple, and the chemistry between most couples is totally awesome. Of course there are things I'd like more of, like music and silliness and less of, like the sometimes seemingly fake moans, but I've started to make my way, and a name, for myself.

I'm just an average girl from Long Island who got to follow the path that had been plotted for her long before she knew it was an option. And I hope you'll continue to follow along with me. Whether you turn on my videos, flip through the pages of one of my books, read an article, a column or a blog post I wrote, know that I'm still, and always hope to be, happily wading through the world of sex. I didn't choose sex, it chose me, but man (and woman), I'm glad it did.

You can check out the personal touch video series at www.personaltouchnow.com.
